

'You as a Collaborative Leader'

A Collaborative Leadership Development Opportunity to support health and social care integration

We are excited to announce that another cohort of the popular Leadership for Integration programme, You as a Collaborative Leader (YaCL), will be running again in Autumn 2023.

YaCL is a programme for health and social services professionals working in integration, to develop the skills and knowledge to lead effectively across integrated settings where effective collaboration is essential.

YaCL is an interactive learning programme comprised of a mix of self-directed learning, reflective practice, online workshops, smaller online peer thinking groups, and 1:1 coaching. YaCL will take place over four months between September 2023 - December 2023.

This programme offers opportunities to:

- Reflect on your own leadership style and learn new leadership models & theories
- Improve confidence around influencing effectively in collaborative settings
- Understand how to build better cross-sector relationships
- Learn from speakers and peers from integrated health and social care settings
- Engage in coaching, reflective practice and peer support

"It is definitely worth applying for this course. Great opportunity to meet colleagues from different professions and different organisations. Peer groups were a great way to work collaboratively on an identified problem not always finding an exact solution but getting lots of ideas on how to tackle things. The 1:1 coaching session at the end of the course was invaluable. I now have lots of tools and resources for going forward."
